God saying things have to be done a certain way... his way. Why do you think God wants things done a certain way?

Why is it important to get things right regarding approaching God?

Context: God has just freed Israel out of Egypt out of slavery to be his people.

They have been told to set up a tabernacle which is the sign of God dwelling with his people. Showering them with forgiveness love and mercy. In grateful thankfulness Israel was to obey God in everything. Israel are already the people of God. This is not how to become one of God's people, this is instruction on how to live as God's people. How to live in relationship with God.

How can Israel maintain relationship with God? They do it God's way.

James 5:13-20

How do you prepare for a wait at the Doctors surgery or other places you know that there will be a wait involved?

How are you waiting for Jesus return?

What does James compare our waiting to in vv7-8?

How might we be tempted to grumble against each other in the context of our waiting v9?

Think of some examples of Prophets and their patience in waiting. How might we be encouraged by this?

What about Job, how might his patience and trust in God be a great example and encouragement to us?

When do you find it very difficult to be patient as we await the return of the Lord? What things might test this patience?

What does v13 say about when we should pray? How do we go with that? When are you most likely to pray most?

In verses 14-15 we come across some of the most difficult verses in the bible. But we will attempt here to come to some kind of understanding. The word used for sickness here is used for the physical and spiritual sickness or weakness. The context seems to be talking about a bed ridden illness not the common cold or upset tummy. Sickness is not always due to sin in the life of the one who is sick but there is enough evidence in scripture to suggest that this could be a gracious nudge to examine your life and to repent ask God for forgiveness.

So why call the elders at all?

- I see that it has to do with understanding the place of the prayer of faith & the anointing with oil (v14).
- The way it is written sounds as if healing (and possibly forgiveness) is linked to the amount of faith that the elders can muster as they pray for the sick person & maybe some qualities in the olive oil. That's not Biblical. Not what James is saying either. This could also be read as "the prayer of faith".
- It seems that the prayer of faith is a prayer offered by the elders for healing when they are convicted that it is God's will to bring healing. A prayer offered on the basis of the Spirit's conviction to the elders that in this circumstance it is God's will that the person be healed.

Faith is a gift to us from God (Eph 2). A Spirit enabled conviction that the gospel is true.

- The Holy Spirit does work this way, every follower of Jesus has experienced it one way or another.
- Eldership is a position in the church establishment and authorised by God. His church, his method.

- Can God heal? Of course he can. (What if people say that God doesn't do miracles in these days? They are not the boss).
- Will he give the leaders of his people the ability to lead as he calls them to? Of course He will/does.
- Is this example of leading (the prayer of faith) inconsistent with the teaching of the Bible? Not at all.
- Does it mean that they will all be healed? No, it is all to do with God's will.
- Does this bring to light a heightened understanding of the responsibilities of leadership? Indeed it does.
- Does this confront us with things we may not have been aware of or been practicing? Very possible.
- Does that mean it's not right? No, it may mean that we are not right and that we need to amend things.

What about the oil? Short answer: it is symbolic that this healing, which confirms in a gracious way forgiveness, comes from Jesus. And the final verses 19-20 may help us to put these verses into a bit more context.
